The Marketing Meeting - Transcript

00:00:00

Matt Watson: say, "Hey, is this one of your guys? They want to get to the portal to view call records." I'll I'll do a whole write up with visuals and everything for your your guys. I just giving you a heads up.

Jason Branham: Okay. Okay.

Matt Watson: But I'm I know you were interested. I am too. You know, the people clicking those are obviously the ones most interested in call recordings. So, yes, I'm curious what their engagement's going to be.

Jason Branham: You would think

Joe Furnari: Hey, Manny's on a call right now. I have no idea who, but I can hear him. So I don't know Michael I would just start Michael Donovan: Yeah. Okay. So, here's uh Yeah, I don't Thomas isn't here.

Jason Branham: Is this everybody? Is that Betty?

Michael Donovan: Benny's not here.

Jason Branham: Oh yeah.

Michael Donovan: Um, we have Gemini notes. Z is uh Z got married on Saturday out till Thursday.

Matt Watson: All right.

Jason Branham: Whoa. Congratulations.

00:00:59

Jason Branham: You know, Michael, the thing about getting married, that's a lifelong commitment.

Michael Donovan: Yeah, it is. Yeah, supposed to be.

Jason Branham: Yeah.

Matt Watson: That's the point.

Michael Donovan: Is there a joke there?

Matt Watson: I was looking for the punch line.

Joe Furnari: Yeah, I know.

Michael Donovan: never know with Jason. Yeah. So, here's here's the the gist of uh of where we're at. I know we had our discussion about messaging last week, which was which was great. Uh, I think many more to come on refining and evolving that messaging as Matt and team and Sergey uh continue to improve on modernizing some of the the data statistics. Um, you know, one of the one of the projects that you all have heard me mention that is uh, you know, I I did figure out that even in the current state, although it's not publishing and pushing to a new website, that I can still use it effectively for for uh messaging as an example but also producing content with accuracy at speed and scale.

00:02:41

Michael Donovan: So what does that mean? Um, of course we have our strawid property for socials, but people really prefer to connect with people. And you could look at this across major global brands, Coke, Pepsi. You're going to see more activity from uh people engaging with Elon Musk as opposed to Tesla. Okay. So, what I started to do as a concept is put together some social post and I'm going to have visuals.

Joe Furnari: All right.

Michael Donovan: These are for LinkedIn and I selected Reed and Gus as my pilot individuals, users. Had a conversation with Gus. I'm going to speak with Reed uh later today, but I wanted to be proactive and and share this with them. So feeding these guys content that's relative to their role, position, and industry that they can post on LinkedIn. So it'll be a full package. And um we're going to, you know, aim for two posts per week for the next three weeks. So six posts in total. Uh could be a series.

00:04:20

Michael Donovan: They could be independent. I would rather cast a broad net. And then getting them a little more involved with LinkedIn I think is a good thing on the sales side. Not trying to overstep Jason. Trying to equip uh which is why I'm bringing it up today so I can get your feedback and I'll share this back with you guys. Uh so you have access to it. You can watch it evolve. So, it's Reed, it's Gus, and then there's some some thought leadership here that I'm going to use to, you know, have have meetings and conversations uh across the team. Any thoughts, questions, ideas?

Matt Watson: I can I think it's great because I it's probably the last two or three years and in the car dealerships and I was having to help a little bit here and there with with marketing and social media was becoming bigger and bigger. I think it was Nissan, maybe it was Toyota, maybe it was both. But the OEM started coming out with these default social media feeds.

00:05:33

Matt Watson: Jason, I don't know if you remember. And it was so nice.

Jason Branham: Yeah.

Matt Watson: They give you access to these systems and as a dealer, you could just say, "Turn them all on." And it was good, solid, high quality, and they would post it for you, right?

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Matt Watson: And then you would have an optional list. So your marketing people could go in there and pick their favorite or fill in pieces or their deals, right? And that's just why do they do that? Because they know we're busy as hell. So I this is great, right? Social media is like the last thing in the world I have time for. So good stuff.

Jason Branham: Well, really they did it because they wanted relative content to push their manufacturer and the dealers weren't doing it.

Matt Watson: Yeah. Well, right because any Yeah.

Jason Branham: Yeah.

Matt Watson: Anything helps, right? But yeah, nobody at the dealership had the knowhow or the time to do it. So why not why not do this?

00:06:17

Michael Donovan: But the like so the thought here is that that there's no expectation that this is going to be like an automated thing, right? It's going to be reviewed and accessible to read and to Gus. So they they're going to like read through it and what resonates with them and the recent conversations that they've been having, it gives them some fresh talking points. It gives them maybe a little bit of uh confidence, conviction when they're going into a pitch or, you know, a monthly meeting.

Matt Watson: Yep.

Michael Donovan: So, I'll just give you the one like Gus really liked this one. Why your two-c AI response is losing to my five minute human touch. He's dealing with like a lot of dealers are going AI or like hybrid where they have us and they're adding podium in or whatever. So, dealers are being sold AI speed. But here's what actually converts. responding within five minutes with a human who can answer inventory questions, discuss OEM incentives, and handle trade-in objections. Harvard data shows five minute human response is seven times more effective than one-hour response.

Michael Donovan: AI can't negotiate, build rapport, or handle complex new car financing scenarios. Real case, seven store group improved show rate by nine points using trained humans, not bots. Quality conversations that qualify buyers, not just fast acknowledgements.

Joe Furnari: So, Michael, I like all of that, but my only question in case it becomes an issue is you're stating facts there, but you have the actual articles and support behind that, right?

Michael Donovan: Yes, absolutely. And um

Joe Furnari: Okay. I didn't suggest you were making it up, but I just want to make sure you weren't taking liberties to interpret something that someone else might interpret differently because you specifically reference referencing a metrics like 7x more, five minutes versus two. Like I just want to make sure that we're confident that that's um data that you got um that you researched that there's a reliable source behind it said differently.

Michael Donovan: Yeah. So, the Harvard Business Review um article and that's referenced in content on our website currently.

Joe Furnari: Okay.

Michael Donovan: So, that's the it's a great point.

00:09:02

Michael Donovan: All of this is coming from our content. This is all sourced from Stid.

Joe Furnari: Okay. What now? What's your timing on all this stuff so that we can help you deliver that? like you trying to get these things locked and loaded and agreed to between the team by the end of the week and the next 24 hours just so that we're all kind of aligned. And Vinnie's on with Perry. He's got a weekly call at 9:00 a.m. I didn't know that. I thought it was at 10. So I told him I would mention to you to see if you could revisit the timing of this.

Michael Donovan: Oh, okay. Yeah, for sure. We'll just bump it back to 10. Yeah, timing timing wise, um, looking to get the at least the first post out for each of these guys today.

Joe Furnari: Okay.

Michael Donovan: or I'm sorry, this week and then we'll we'll kick off.

Joe Furnari: Got it.

Michael Donovan: Yeah. Yeah. I don't know if we'll get two in this week.

00:10:04

Michael Donovan: And I don't I don't want everything to be exactly Strawid, but I do want it to be uh you know remotely a close cousin to our creative and brand, right? We'll use the same font. Uh be well formatted for any accompanying graphics. And I have uh although not fully automated, um I have templates for this side and for this the strawlet post. Uh so we're picking the cadence back up on that as well.

Jason Branham: So the the only I think it's good as well. The only issue I see is we have to be sure and when you start involving the team like that if marketing does what it's supposed to it creates action, right? Spurs action and somebody responds.

Michael Donovan: right?

Jason Branham: So, you're going to have to have a a good solid roundroin because the last thing that we need is internal fighting going on and say, "Oh, I got three leads off of that last LinkedIn post." And then somebody else is saying, "Well, I haven't even had a LinkedIn post yet." Or the last LinkedIn post that I had, I didn't get squat.

00:11:25

Jason Branham: So whenever you involve teams like that, that's the that's always the the biggest challenge is making sure that however we do it, it's, you know, as quote equitable, fair as possible so people don't feel like that, you know, they're receiving something that someone else isn't. Does that make sense?

Michael Donovan: Yeah. So, initial here's here's the uh here's the concept. Uh good point taken noted doing this manually with read and gus to get some initial some initial data. Ultimately this will be automated and accessible uh as far as producing the content for each of the team members. client success, sales, uh even across the executive team.

So, and the leads, you know, this for their individual profiles, these these posts. So, if they're engaged with someone on LinkedIn and they can they can set a meeting, I mean, that's that's great, right? We just want to make sure we get that in Zoho and we have some attribution back to it, but I don't see Yeah.

Jason Branham: Well, I mean, that's the whole point.

Jason Branham: I hope. Of course, it's great, but that's the whole point is to engage people.

Michael Donovan: So, I don't Yeah. Yeah. and to have to to to have the domain expertise, right, that tie to the industry. Uh I don't I don't expect Reed to, you know, be producing his own content at a at a frequency of, you know, two posts per week uh for LinkedIn if it's not something that he's ever done, right?

Jason Branham: Oh, no. We We don't want any of them creating their own their own content or posts. No, it just looks like it's coming from them.

Michael Donovan: Yeah. So, but we we don't have control over their their LinkedIn profile, right? It's so as far as the roundrobin goes, I don't think that is going to be an issue. Um, and we're obviously we're going to get the diversity of the content based on their perspective, the dealers that they're engaged with, the way that uh, you know, they see issues across the industry or opportunities.

Jason Branham: But everything was kind time.

00:14:22

Michael Donovan: uh you know even with the the innovations and enhancements that we'll be making to the portal and CXM. So yeah, I just I want to be clear. It's not like it's a direct lead magnet, right? We're just starting with some some authority, expertise, and experience in the business where we where we do solve problems.

Joe Furnari: Yeah, I think we can play it by ear too. Um, and I guess Michael, the other thing is, is there a way if these are going to be posts coming directly from sales and client success, is there a way that you can just include like should we include a URL back to our web page? Like, so in the event that they do want to engage then as opposed to engaging with the sales or client success directly on LinkedIn, which I know is more efficient and probably a better experience. Is there a way to balance it? So, cuz

Jason's point is, who knows, maybe Gus posts something and he he gets five dealers that reach out to him in the course of like three days because they really like it.

Joe Furnari: He's going to want to take all those leads on. You heard him at the offsite two weeks ago. He's not going to, you know, delegate or ask any other, you know, sales, you know, Reed or anyone else or Jason to to take these on. He's going to try to do them all himself. And I would, too. So, and and I guess that's probably not a bad problem to have, Jason, on the flip side, right? you know, um but to to plan for it in case it does happen, let's think if there's any alternatives to prevent that from happening.

Jason Branham: Not at all.

Joe Furnari: But I guess

Michael Donovan: Yeah, but put I mean put your Jason Branham: But we got to be sure that there's some way that because if you know Gus's quote unquote the amount of followers he has versus the amount of followers that Strowlet has or Vinnie has is substantially uh less, right? So, there's got to be a way that we tie in Straw andor Vinnie somehow for maximum exposure because, you know, Gus may only have, you know, couple hundred followers.

00:16:38

Matt Watson: I was going to say, why would we limit it to one one user?

Jason Branham: So,

Michael Donovan: Uh, limit what? To one user?

Matt Watson: Why couldn't everybody send out the same one?

Michael Donovan: Well, then it's it's duplicate content. um there's no real no real authority behind that.

Matt Watson: How's that different from Oh, I was getting that Michael Donovan: I think if it was a repost, a like, a comment, a share, which I'm I've also had the conversation uh with Gus that in in having some interaction and engagement, not like there's a straw post that goes up and he runs at it like Ken did where it's an an immediate like, comment, repost, you know, that just the algorithm isn't buying that.

Matt Watson: Maybe that's the answer, right? If if it if Gus is up to bat, everyone else can share his post right now.

Michael Donovan: Yeah, we should be doing that for sure.

Matt Watson: Now everybody gets everybody's got the same opportunity to share the same message.

Michael Donovan: Yeah. Yeah.

Jason Branham: Well, we'd want we definitely want the the main account straw to repost it, right, there.

00:17:55

Michael Donovan: Not necessarily. Um, that's it's it's definitely a thing worth uh testing.

Jason Branham: Okay.

Matt Watson: What's up? Who knows? Right. Yeah.

Michael Donovan: I'm just trying to establish a foundation, guys. Right.

Matt Watson: Yeah.

Michael Donovan: These are all great ideas and um and it it look all of this content again.

Matt Watson: Which you did. That's good. Yeah.

Michael Donovan: Let me just share it with you now. We'll get uh Benny, it should already be on it. What happened, Matt?

Matt Watson: What did I do?

Michael Donovan: There we go.

Joe Furnari: Yeah, and Michael, I don't think anyone's trying to criticize. We're just trying to pressure test to to drive the the the greatest results and the highest engagement.

Jason Branham: Yeah.

Michael Donovan: Yeah, that's that's well, you know, it's

Jason Branham: Because you know the very first thing Vinnie is going to ask is how's this creating leads and if Strollet isn't involved somehow you know to to post it or reshare it or something like that to hit all the followers.

00:18:56

Jason Branham: I'm just trying to think ahead but because you know Reed Gus Kayla Edwin uh link anybody there they don't have near the the reach. Um So that's that's probably going to be the first question.

Michael Donovan: So, how does this generate leads? Is that what I'm hearing is the question? Yeah.

Matt Watson: You know it will

Jason Branham: So that's that's the the very first potential. Am I Matt? Joe, do what do you think?

Joe Furnari: I agree. But I would just add a little more to that because what this is what I think Jason was trying to emphasize is how does it create more leads but how does it provide us the opportunity to be as broad across all of our connections to increase that. So Jason's point is if you limited it in theory, I know people will repost it and your comment around well why wouldn't Straw repost it and you said potentially I I think Vinnie's going to want to blast it to everyone and anyone and I get the dilution that you talked about especially if it's going out to multiple multiple to the same people multiple times but we need to make sure that the net is cast appropriately to drive the highest volume of leads.

Joe Furnari: That's all. And I don't have the answer to that.

Michael Donovan: Okay. So, so we we have to have a stance in our industry for what we do that strengthens our ex our our authority, right? through the experience, expertise, authority, and trust. Well, is it is it definitely going to drive leads directly? And and and I'm I'm just putting pieces of this conversation together as if there's only one way to attribute that, which is sounds like last click. Attribution model would be the the attribution model where someone reads the post, clicks the link, comes to the website, fills out a form, engages, is contacted, set, demoed, assessed, another meeting, pitched on price, right?

Jason Branham: Yeah, but it could be as simple as they just reach out via LinkedIn. Hey Gus, call me or you know they DM they DM Reed and say hey you know give me a shout when you get a chance or what I mean I don't think that we're going to be able to like nail down complete attribution just because of the nature of what it is.

Jason Branham: But there there's multiple avenues for engagement though, not just they don't have to click a link.

Michael Donovan: There there is what we

Jason Branham: They don't have to, you know, they can communicate via LinkedIn. Just like, you know, that guy the other day that Vinnie was like, "Hey, we should be on this, you know," and I spoke up and said, "Well, that's not necessarily on everybody's feet, you know, to be able to see it." when the guy asked about uh a BDC reference and one of our guys from group one, you know, mentioned Vinnie uh you know, of course we did uh reach out and all that kind of stuff and you know, no

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Jason Branham: engagement. You know, the guy never responded, which not surprising, but not everybody sees the same feed. So,

Michael Donovan: No, they don't. But and and I I have um I have Agora Pulse trial.

Joe Furnari: What?

Michael Donovan: It's a one-mon trial and I have listening. I haven't had the time to set it up. So, I'm like wasting a trial.

00:23:26

Michael Donovan: that's going to solve that. The way that the way that I see maybe some of the dots being connected is Gus and Edwin and Kayla and Link, Jason and Reed and and all of us on this call. We all we all have our own profiles, right? And if we can be active and relevant, in our posting, linking back, you know, from our site to our LinkedIn profiles. I mean, that should be a given. And I have it outlined in in the UI on the new site and expanding, you know, beyond leadership to um to these direct interface positions with the dealers that is part of then the ecosystem. So, I'm just trying to set the foundation as a building block and and I I was able to efficiently create I think there's a total of what five here, another five, and five more topics. So, I created these 15. And I like these ones a little bit better for how they are formatted because it goes back to the actual um strawid page or my database of where the information came from.

00:25:16

Michael Donovan: So that's that's kind of slick and I think important to I think Joe's point earlier. All right. So this is, you know, directly back to all of our content. I don't want this to be a failure to launch. I want to get initial data, work out the process, continue on the other initiatives that will automate the creation and analysis. the analysis. So if if Gus posts a post and his post gets the sets a new record for engagement, comments, repost, um reactions, likes. That tells us something. And we can dissect that programmatically and then start to apply that. Was it was it the topic, the category? Was it the structure? Was it the graphic? So we can try to duplicate that. And I just want to back up. I want to give you guys some information. So although we haven't posted over the last 30 days in comparison to our competitors, we've had the highest percentage of new followers. Um 51% of what?

Michael Donovan: I'm not sure. I think our average. It must be our average. Uh, and we still across our competitors have the highest following. Uh, LinkedIn specifically, our top post, we're def we're down, right? because we haven't posted, but it hasn't had as significant of an impact as you might think for engagements. Um, it's definitely not an excuse. It it just is an it's an insight. It's trailing metrics. So, I can put those together and share them back as well.

Joe Furnari: No, I think that's helpful. But I think we for now, Michael, I think you heard the the emphasis from Vinnie um and obviously Jason too is we've got to get content out there. So, I think we can work through some of the process.

Michael Donovan: Joe, I got to stop. I got to interrupt. That's the problem I'm solving. And And it's not that we have to get content out there. the content that's out there is f us six ways from Sunday based on the most recent algorithm update in know it's it's significant.

00:28:24

Michael Donovan: It's really not good.

Joe Furnari: No, I understand.

Michael Donovan: That's the structure in the hierarchy. So,

Joe Furnari: But my only point is just move forward with what you have here. Make the updates that you need. Share it across the team like you did. get validation that the approach is is and the content is what we want to start to message. Then we can determine, you know, what the process needs to be with respect to the the sales and the client success team. Um, that's what I would just recommend because Vinnie's going to want to see this and and validate it. So, you got to get it through him and and Jason. So, that's my recommendation. I don't think you need to go much deeper than than what you've already done. I think you've got a pretty good perspective and color on what the feedback was from the team. I think they that they they like the approach. Jason was highlighting some process things that we would want to make sure give us direction on how to maximize the engagement via LinkedIn and so forth and we'll all just kind of follow suit on that.

00:29:26

Joe Furnari: I think that that's fine.

Jason Branham: I think we could throw up a picture of Gus and just say best beard in automotive BDC.

Michael Donovan: I mean, that's kind of a fun one. There's nothing wrong with that, but Well, there you go.

Jason Branham: Send send us your picks. is that you know we think we got the best beard in automotive BDC.

Joe Furnari: Yeah, I'd support that. I'm not sure Gus would want to throw that out there, but yeah, you might be.

Michael Donovan: There's a You know what?

Jason Branham: Oh, I bet he would.

Michael Donovan: There's a fun one. We should get a do a beard battle social engagement. Maybe it's good on like that that could potentially be good on Instagram or Facebook.

Jason Branham: Yeah. Yeah. Best BDC beard.

Michael Donovan: Get some voting, right?

Jason Branham: Yeah, that gets engagement.

Michael Donovan: And then like we should also be it would also be really good to kick off a Tik Tok where Vin was providing insight to customers, car shoppers. Hey, you're shopping for a car.

00:30:25

Michael Donovan: Here are the common challenges, right? This is what happens behind the scenes when you submit uh your information or call a dealership. Like that could potentially be a really good way. Uh and and that just that's that expertise, that experience, the authority, right? So, cuz dealers and all the positions that are in the buyer buyer group, they're they're also on TikTok. Maybe not while they're at work or automot they're trying to blow off steam and, you know, hit the get some dopamine. So, they're freaking doom scrolling through Tik Tok. That's that's meeting them where they are. that's showing that that expertise and and Joe here this is all of the content that I've created. All right, this is hub and spoke. These are all markdown files in in the new website, fully organized, totally optimized, and it translates over here. Go ahead, man.

Joe Furnari: Matt, thanks for looking at that.

Michael Donovan: So these were the nine nine initial pages uh hub pages. I have the rest of them to import.

00:32:06

Michael Donovan: It's I had to break it into four. So for each hub page just these pages right here, these are the pages that branch off of just those pages and they're organized into nine clusters. And all of the content is created from from these these atom uh atomic content units. So it could be a statistic or a definition. Here's the Harvard 2011. All right. Show rate definition. There's 1,783 atomic content units.

Joe Furnari: Yeah, but Michael, I think you're missing the point here to some extent and I'm not trying to criticize is we recognize what you're building from a scale and an automation perspective. That's great, but in the short term, we're trying to just get more visibility and improve posts, however you want to describe engagement and content. And I get all the algorithms. So, I'm just saying, let's move forward. I see that you've built all this stuff. Let's try to get validation that whatever the messaging is and the content that Vinnie and team agree to that we can start getting posts back out since we haven't posted in 30 days.

Joe Furnari: Um, if you can't run in parallel with that and the automation that you're building, then let's have a discussion. But I think at the end of the day, we're fine with everything you're doing. let's start to get this activity back out on LinkedIn and some of the other sites. Um, that's what I'm trying to drive you towards and and and guide you because I think that's what Vinnie's eager to see. I I get that you've built all this technology. We already know that.

Michael Donovan: Yeah. So, we're posting. We have daily posts. Um, we'll have them for the next two weeks. By that period, I should have everything else dialed in. So we can start the flow and we can hydrate social posts and emails and solid posts and not going to have everything with you know individuals uh and their their LinkedIn profiles to start but we are putting that in motion uh to run in parallel. So this is the theme and I don't know if You guys caught the I updated, you know, the float is off the freaking homepage.

Michael Donovan: So, this has been updated. Follows a basic ADA format and it solved a few other problems instead of just swapping a graphic out in the hero.

Joe Furnari: I haven't been on the website. So, recently so this is an update to the website home homepage.

Michael Donovan: Yeah. Homepage update.

Joe Furnari: Yep. Okay, great.

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Jason Branham: I got a dealer demo and I gotta talk to Edwin right before I got to jump.

Joe Furnari: Yeah. Yeah, we got to jump too.

Jason Branham: But I like that.

Joe Furnari: Michael, I think you should just do a quick speaker, Vinnie. I like it, too. I think it's great. Let us know how you we can help in improve the the success of that. And maybe um again, Vinnie's going to want to approve these things.

Michael Donovan: Yeah. I I had a a conversation with Vin yesterday. Um, I shared the post back with him. So, yeah, it's not necessarily what everyone may be accustomed to. I was accused of treating it like a Fortune 500 company or something like that.

Michael Donovan: And that's not that's not the case. It's this is the way to do it. Not it's not the old way of doing it. It's the way to do it now.

Joe Furnari: I'm not disagreeing with you, Michael, but there's also an approach that says you phase yourself into these things as opposed to building it all now and upfront. And I just been trying to highlight for you the last couple of weeks is is there has to be likely a balance because there's some things that we need to get with respect to short-term wins and and momentum back in which is what Vinnie's trying to highlight. So are you compromising some of the short-term objectives to deliver on a medium-term outcome that I'm asking the question. I'm not telling you whether that question is yes or no, but I don't think I'm the only one that's raised that to you. So that's why I'm trying to get you to to reinforce if you think this is the best way to accomplish short-term wins and build what we need to in the medium term.

Joe Furnari: Great. Then highlight why that is. I think where you're getting friction across the team is we're seeing the technology build more so than we are seeing some of the short-term engagement that we know we need to combat the churn that we're currently experiencing. So that's I know they're all tied together, Michael.

Michael Donovan: But those those thing like right there, man. I I mean

Joe Furnari: I get that. I'm not disagreeing with you. But what you're building is isn't going to be ready to fully be in place and operational and isn't going to create the level of traction that we want to see in the next couple of weeks. That's going to take time. Plus, you got resource issues. And I know we're going to talk about it, but I do got to jump for a call at 10. But all I'm saying is these are all the things that I'm trying to encourage you to balance. like I think there were short-term wins and quick hits that we could make that I don't know if you're balancing that enough.

00:38:44

Joe Furnari: And I'm not telling you that you aren't. I'm just suggesting that you've got to weigh that in when you make the recommendations here cuz we see the technology you're building. You've been sharing it with us for a while now, but again, it's not in production at the level that you want it to be. You've got resource deficiencies and Vinnie's concerned that the pipeline needs to be rebuilt because it's very very thin. So balancing those, we need short-term impact. And I don't know if everything you're bringing together is going to have a short-term impact. I do believe it's going to have an impact four or five months from now and maybe even a little bit sooner, but it's not going to have an impact in the next week or two likely because you just aren't going to have it. It doesn't appear so where you want it to be. So, and we don't have to debate this, Michael, because I I we keep No, I agree.

Michael Donovan: It's fine. It's fine. I don't want to go in circles, Joe, but we we should maybe have another conversation.

Joe Furnari: Ultimately, you got to get align with Vinnie, not me. As I'm I'm just trying to provide you a perspective, that's all. He's the one that makes all these decisions. I I don't make the decisions on the content or how you build it. Um I just go by what he's the comments that he's made and the concerns he's raised around churn. And we we've definitely lost a lot of dealers and that's not going to slow down especially with Gillress which is you know eight or nine dealers that we going to lose um an effect.

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Joe Furnari: Okay.

Michael Donovan: Yeah. I I realize that that is uh I don't see the correlation between the social post and losing Gilchrist.

Joe Furnari: No, no, I do. No, no, that I wasn't trying to imply that. What I was saying is we need new business to combat that.

Michael Donovan: Okay. So um so but I know we're Yes.

Joe Furnari: That's all.

Michael Donovan: bailing the water.

Joe Furnari: Yeah. So you and I live in a similar camp and I'll end it with this.

00:40:52

Joe Furnari: I told Vinnie in the fall when I saw this coming and his view is he sells himself out of these issues all the time and he'll prove me wrong. And in effect Jason and him proved me wrong in February, March and April when they did that when the f churn went through the roof in four months. And what did they do? They brought in the step ones and the gill crests and you know they were closing 15 deals a month and that's exactly what they did.

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Joe Furnari: So that's what Vinnie is going to basically revert back to because that's what he's been doing for 25 f years is I just reach out to my network and beg him for business and they come in and and I you know mitigate the impact of churn. What you're saying is, and I agree with you, in the medium term, we're going to build muscle here and a recurring revenue engine and drive retention and expansion if I build it this way, which I agree and support.

Michael Donovan: But it it it went from that to and migrating the site as as a you know one of the things that needed to be done to this to to having the when I when I did the audit and I pulled the site down and the algorithm the result it changed from a migration to a rebuild while ramping a guy that's not producing okay that's also consuming 30 35% of my time

00:42:31

Joe Furnari: Right.

Michael Donovan: where I'm making those investments and the juice isn't worth the squeeze because there's no juice. Okay? And all of that happened in the past four weeks. The same time, okay?

Joe Furnari: Yeah.

Michael Donovan: not two months. The same time where the Viconic uh launch and and that was a resource burn on on me getting that what uh the first week Z was here. The second week I need to skill assess and yeah, a couple of red flags, but I figured I'd take the time, make the investment, educate, inform week after that I'm out at the office and then last week I'm raising my hand having other conversations. So, not sure how I could have arrived at a potential decision any quicker and all of the like I don't need to hear all of the things that aren't done. I'm I'm I'm pretty well informed on what's going on and what hasn't occurred. Okay. What has been built is the solution when it's launched the immediate the short term has the impact.

00:44:01

Michael Donovan: This is it's a major thing like no one seems to understand the importance. Okay. Oh, and honest blew out our tag and we lost all of our enhanced conversion because they thought it was a good idea to to do this to our navigation. It's not even done. It's like maybe I guess a little better subjectively, but you know, nine weeks to get this done to have him do it during one of our meetings with a developer I've never met and I obviously don't need them to do this. Okay. I'm fully capable of doing it, but it's in their contract. They're they were supposed to do it.

Joe Furnari: Right.

Michael Donovan: So, that's one thing I don't have to f do because they're supposed to do they're being paid to do it.

Joe Furnari: Oh, that's Yeah. Yeah. So, Michael, I know we're meeting at 10:30 and I'm already late.

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Joe Furnari: Here's what I would say is No, just one quick thing.

Michael Donovan: Go ahead. Well, that's fine.

00:44:58

Joe Furnari: I'm not sitting here telling you what's not getting done.

Michael Donovan: right. All right. Thanks, Joe.

Vinnie Micciche: What's 30 minutes?

Michael Donovan: Just It's our weekly, Joe and I. No, I we can run through it.

Vinnie Micciche: Oh, do you want to do this? Do you want to do this in 30 minutes?

Michael Donovan: It's fine. And I'm going to change this meeting, man. I'm just going to put it back to 10 ongoing.

Vinnie Micciche: Well, I've always had a call with Perry at 9:00 am on Tuesdays. It's usually usually a half an hour, but I lately there's so much s going on that I I can't rush him up off the call Michael Donovan: I didn't I didn't know. I'm just going to change it right now. We're going to put this for 10 to 10:30. And we're going to save this now.

Vinnie Micciche: at 9 today.

Michael Donovan: 9:15 9:50.

Vinnie Micciche: Okay.

Michael Donovan: It's supposed to be 9:15 to to 9:45 for the 30 minute, but we seem to meet on the hour here.

00:46:23

Michael Donovan: Uh, which is fine. I just updated all the future ones starting next week.

Vinnie Micciche: Okay.

Michael Donovan: So, look, we were just going through a few things, Vin. Uh, I sent this over to you, shared this doc. So, with with the way that I've like pulled all of the content, I can use it now. It's just it's not like the full automated, you know, super efficient, but I was able to get these 15 posts, topics in minutes from all of our content. So, what I'm what I'm proposing uh Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: Blow that a little.

Michael Donovan: So this is the the thought leader, right? Like if you wanted to take this content and use it as an idea or you wanted me to bake it out a little bit more, give me some context.

Vinnie Micciche: Where did all this content come from?

Michael Donovan: This came from Stid's content.

Vinnie Micciche: Okay.

Michael Donovan: This came from That came that came from my from my prompt.

Vinnie Micciche: But this AI stuff didn't. And it could be old.

00:47:49

Vinnie Micciche: Okay.

Michael Donovan: All right. So, I'd have to it's not that we're we're leaning into it.

Vinnie Micciche: What was your what was your prompt? I I want to kind of get away from AI won't replace your team stuff because it sounds defensive. Um, what see CRM hygiene?

Michael Donovan: These are all concepts. So, human-led this is the topic here. So kind of in it's indicative of what the prompt was. Humanled AI assisted BDC Vcon power transparency.

Vinnie Micciche: No one knows what the hell that means. Like, I don't know. I guess they do, but I I hate you use these big words. I I need to dumb it down for these guys. Seriously, I want to just tell them what we're we're talking about. They don't read all this crap. They don't call.

Michael Donovan: Finn, this isn't this is for this is for us.

Vinnie Micciche: Okay.

Michael Donovan: This is for us to review and say, "Okay, this is a good topic. Michael,

Vinnie Micciche: Okay.

00:48:48

Michael Donovan: I like this. Michael, I don't like this." I

Vinnie Micciche: Okay. So, can you just share it with me so I can spend some time on it?

Michael Donovan: did. Yeah. Yeah. And then and then right like so over here, client success and I have Gus and sales, I have Reed providing them with posts for their personal accounts. give them some content. Two posts a week. We're going to run it for three weeks. Uh graphically it's going to be, you know, not exact to what Strolled's doing, but uh templated.

Vinnie Micciche: They're going to do it on LinkedIn.

Michael Donovan: They're going to do Yeah, I'm going to provide them with LinkedIn post for them.

Vinnie Micciche: Do they do they have LinkedIn followers?

Michael Donovan: So that's where, you know, having some repost, some shares, right? working as a team like you know you've said it.

Vinnie Micciche: Yeah. No, I like it. I just I don't know how um I don't know like how much reach we're going to get from it.

00:49:50

Vinnie Micciche: That's all. So, sharing is good.

Michael Donovan: Yep. but also they should have their LinkedIn profile and their email signature and it's going to be relevant to what they're facing, seeing, and hearing from their dealers, from their prospects.

Vinnie Micciche: Mhm.

Michael Donovan: So, I have to get with Reed, but I had an initial conversation with Gus and uh and he he was excited about it. So, he liked this one. He's been he's been dealing with a lot of uh dealers adding in like the podiums, right? It's why your two second AI response is losing to my five minute human touch. So, we'll have a post.

Vinnie Micciche: Mhm.

Michael Donovan: This gives us some some talking points for the post.

Vinnie Micciche: Yep.

Michael Donovan: All right. And we have the Harvard review and like all the factual information. Nothing's made up.

Vinnie Micciche: Listen, do do me a favor. Don't worry so much about what I push back on because I push back on myself just as hard as I push back on you.

00:50:47

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: Uh, I get I get stuff I write stuff and then later I'm like, I don't like it now, but I liked it when I was writing it. If that makes sense. So, like I'm I'm like constantly looking for the right messaging.

Michael Donovan: So here here's the only thing I would caution on um on the messaging requirements is I don't want to overanalyze. I don't want to really make the decision on what's going to work based on what I think. I want the data.

Vinnie Micciche: If you're going I would change.

Michael Donovan: I'm just always anchored in data. I just want to know. So, if it aligns, it's not obnoxious or outlandish. My vote's always going to be let's give it a shot and then we'll know. That's all.

Vinnie Micciche: Yeah. So like for example on number three, I would change new car shoppers to new car buyers deserve better because the shoppers can work with a bot.

Michael Donovan: Yep.

Vinnie Micciche: A buyer is where you have problems with a bot when someone when someone's at a buying mode.

00:52:05

Michael Donovan: Okay.

Vinnie Micciche: So the way I train sales is this. You have three levels of a customer. You have a research customer. You have a shopper. You have a buyer. A research customer can use chat GPT and bots. A shopper can shop around. They get confused easily. Shoppers buyers know what they want and have already shopped and know what the pricing they want. That's where you don't want a bot involved because it's going to frustrate a buyer. So buyers, we got to hone in on the buying part of it.

Michael Donovan: So is it how about customer

Vinnie Micciche: No, buyers. Buyers will get their attention. They're looking for buyers. They're looking for people that are ready to buy. New car b new new car customers ready to buy. Maybe if you want to say that deserve better than a chat chatbot.

Michael Donovan: How about this?

Vinnie Micciche: Ready to buy is what I said. That's what it needs to be because that's what that's what I'm seeing, Michael.

00:53:13

Vinnie Micciche: If you want my expertise, the buyers are what you're going to f with bots.

Michael Donovan: Yeah, I I was I I

Vinnie Micciche: The ones that are ready to buy. If you don't have a human involved at that point, you're f. It's that simple. And when people are calling a dealership, they're ready to buy. They don't call unless they're ready to buy. And when you fill in a lead from, you know, true car, you're not necessarily a buyer yet. You're starting your, you know, your higher funnel. It's the lowerfunnel buyer that we want to make sure everybody understands. You don't a bot is get the bot out of the way. And you're going to get a lot of people to agree with me on that because car guys understand that. It's like the buyer is somebody you need to handle carefully. That's why we have to channels and we get the dealer involved right away when we can't answer their questions. is because they're ready to go. Here you go, Mr. Dealer.

00:54:10

Vinnie Micciche: It's your move. What do you want to do? We don't every customer. In other words, it's the buyer. And that's why we're closing by uh to at 26% versus 10% on a lead to close.

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: So, like that's what I'm talking about. like that there's little subtleties in some of the messaging that I don't always agree with that mean make a big diff can make a big difference. I'll give you an example of a subtlety that made a huge difference. Pushing notes into a CRM something I've been told for two years is easy and we can do that and we never did it.

Michael Donovan: Heat.

Vinnie Micciche: We did it. It made a huge difference in our operationally. our dealer satisfaction, our customer uh experience is going to improve because we have data and information every time we talk to them that we don't have to go, "Uh, what did you call us about last time?" You know, and stuff like that. So, like it it it triggers a lot of different things.

00:55:11

Vinnie Micciche: So, that's what I'm looking for when I'm looking at messaging. When I say I don't like my own messaging, I'm not changing the message per se. It's the subtleties of the messaging. You understand?

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: Like a year ago, I would say, you know, I I my messaging sounded a little bit more defensive and anti-bot probably. And I don't want to be that BDC that's worried about their business going under.

Michael Donovan: Heat.

Vinnie Micciche: I want to embrace AI co-pilots working together with AI.

Michael Donovan: Okay.

Vinnie Micciche: More inclusive messaging with AI, not exclusive. Not, hey, you're going to fail if you use a bot, not a human. You know what I mean? That doesn't sound right to me. How do you use them both? How do you work with both? you know, like I'm just not a wordsmith. So, like the word is um you know, bringing the two together, but there's other ways of of saying that it needs to be human and AI at the moment.

00:56:27

Vinnie Micciche: For all those freaking science fiction people that think AI is going to take over the world, that hasn't happened yet. You know what I mean?

Michael Donovan: Yeah. Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: I mean, even Lovable, I have to sit there and prompt it 15 times before it spits out what I actually want, you know, any of these tools. Um, I had a call with Sergey this morning about, you know, Astrology GPT basically is a chatbot. You know that, right? Ask it a question. It's going to give you an answer and it's going to talk about your inventory. It's going to talk about your the lead you you submitted. It's going to talk about any past conversations. It's going to reference a conversation before it spits out an answer if if that conversation is within the data. That's a chatbot. That's a chat. That's better than the chat bots that are out there in my opinion. And we already have it. How do we get it into the conversation to save our people more time?

Vinnie Micciche: That's kind of how I'm looking at it. And I have a whole a whole um document drawn up for her and Matt about finding some middleware that can sit between CXM and the dealer CRM to respond to emails and respond to texts for those shoppers and researchers once they trigger. Hey, I'm buyer. I want a payment. Now we get a person involved. Can you tell me what my trades? Yeah, I want a person handling that. Or the bot with disclaimers. that says, "Yeah, your car is worth anywhere between 15 and $25,000, Michael, but we really need, you know, then the disclaimer says, you know, all prices are subject to whatever blah blah blah blah blah." So they know we're not actually telling them it's worth 15 to 25,000. You know what I mean? And when they say, "Well, I want to know." I'm a buyer. And we we can build it that way. We can build it really really freaking slick like that.

00:58:30

Vinnie Micciche: uh where we have humans in at the right times to talk to customers.

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: So we're not antibot is my point. I'm actually going to be we already built one. We're going to build more.

Michael Donovan: Yeah. I mean a GP a GPT a GPT is smarter than a bot, right?

Vinnie Micciche: It's the smart way to do Go into chat GP, go into astrology and ask it any type of customerfacing question that you would ask as a customer and see

Michael Donovan: But the bot is the chatbot's the interface of It's a way to Vinnie Micciche: and see what it says. Ask about inventory. Ask about um your trade. Ask anything and see what it says because I've already done this a bunch of times and I'm convinced we already have a bot. a chatbot or whatever the hell you want to call it. An email bot, a text bot. Yeah. Just pretend you're a Go pick a dealer, though. Pick Atlantic Toyota. That's one I always use.

00:59:39

Michael Donovan: Atlantic.

Vinnie Micciche: Yeah. Just Yeah, that's like a customer like you're buying a car.

Michael Donovan: Can we I don't know how many C Oh, like I'm Gotcha.

Vinnie Micciche: Just say, "Do you have any 2025 Camry in stock?"

Michael Donovan: Gotcha. Okay. Okay. Shopping for a new Camry. All right.

Vinnie Micciche: Drum roll. I mean, it does take a little longer than a chatbot. Chatbot spit it out much quicker. So, that's something we'd have to work on.

Michael Donovan: They range in this price. There's some pre-owned. Okay, so this is good.

Vinnie Micciche: You what does it say down below? You have a

Michael Donovan: Uh, you have a wide selection of new Toyota Camry models. Straw. Yeah. I mean, the Strawlet AI site's a mess. Uh 2018 to 23. Yeah. Okay. So, so look, this is simple. This should be Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: on dealers websites.

Michael Donovan: But we just have a little a little bit.

01:01:47

Michael Donovan: Not a lot. I would say a little bit of work.

Vinnie Micciche: The challenge is when you say, "What's my trade worth?" or "What's the best price you can do on it?" And then it's it's it can hallucinate.

Michael Donovan: Why is I know this is surrogate.

Vinnie Micciche: So you need the disclaimers on any type of price, trade, credit question. And I've already built out all the disclaimers. So I mean, it's all right there already. How long would it be for a human to list out all the inventory like it just did?

Michael Donovan: So, I don't I'm I'm gonna talk to S Sergey now that he's back. I'm sure he's drinking from a fire hose, right? Just let him get settled. So, I don't know if it'll be today or tomorrow or Friday or whatever, but this is the Cox Automotive API storefront.

Vinnie Micciche: Yeah.

Michael Donovan: So if you look, this is probably what we're using right here is the lead management view create.

Vinnie Micciche: What's the point, Michael? We only got nine more minutes.

01:02:52

Michael Donovan: Yep.

Vinnie Micciche: What are you getting at?

Michael Donovan: Well, right here, the digital showroom.

Vinnie Micciche: Yeah, there's lots we can do. Michael, we already have a pipeline filled with s that I I I believe me. I know we should be exploring APIs more. There's no question.

Michael Donovan: Well, there was one Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: My my problem my my solution though is more efficiency related, dealer related, and it's something we can do now. You just saw it right in front of your eyes. It'll answer questions now.

Michael Donovan: So, like to your point about the trade, I was just if we pulled the MMR and the dealer put the rules in, then Vinnie Micciche: You don't need to go astrology. You don't need to go astrology what your car is worth. It'll tell you right now. Put in your year, make, model, and mileage. They'll even give you a disclaimer most of the time. That's what I'm saying. We We're overthinking all this stuff. The s's in GPT already.

01:03:56

Vinnie Micciche: Why do we have to recreate showroom? You know, you can ask incentives. It'll tell you. It'll ask you for your zip code. That's all shopper questions. Those are all research questions. It's when they become a buyer is when I want to get involved.

Michael Donovan: Okay. So, we would um we would give our our chatbot an MCP.

Vinnie Micciche: For the most accurate quote, provide the vehicle's VIN, get a dealer inspection, or use online appraising tools like Kelly Bubbook. If you'd like, I can I can connect you with the dealership appraisal team or schedule an appointment.

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: I mean, it f amazes me every time I do it. That's exactly how I would want a response going out.

Michael Donovan: Yeah. But we wouldn't want this going out, right?

Vinnie Micciche: Why not? Read the disclaimer down below.

Michael Donovan: No, I I know, but I'm just I look that was that's my that was my truck, right?

Vinnie Micciche: But what?

Michael Donovan: We had the same truck.

01:05:17

Michael Donovan: I like your truck, by the way. And mine was black on black tinted. So, I know what I paid for my truck and I got a pretty good deal on it. Uh, that's a laughable number. Like I would never if any tool spit that number out at me I' I would just back I'd be gone.

Vinnie Micciche: It's not drive down. Why you think it's too low?

Michael Donovan: Yeah, for sure.

Vinnie Micciche: 34 to 39,000 for 2019 with 60,000 miles.

Michael Donovan: Yeah, it's low mileage.

Vinnie Micciche: Cost 75,000 new.

Michael Donovan: I don't know. Yeah, I don't know, man.

Vinnie Micciche: Why?

Michael Donovan: That seems low, right? I don't. Maybe I'm out of tune with Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: It's definitely not low. Mine's about at worth about 50 right now and it's a 2023 with 38,000 miles on it. So that's definitely not low.

Michael Donovan: All right. Yeah. Okay.

Vinnie Micciche: It doesn't matter. It's all subjective anyway.

Michael Donovan: Oh, it No, no, no, no.

01:06:16

Vinnie Micciche: That's why there's disclaimers. Want to say that's what we're giving you.

Michael Donovan: But you're right that like we should have We should have the chatbot.

Vinnie Micciche: You know what's frustrating? You know what's frustrating? You know what's frustrating? It's not just you. It's everybody I talk to. I know I'm right and I have to convince people that I'm right. You do your own research on this. Act like a customer. Spend time on it and then come back to me and tell me what you think because I've been doing that.

Michael Donovan: I think it's good. It's definitely a good use case. Really is.

Vinnie Micciche: This could go out instantly to a text message or to an email. Not a text message. Text message would be shorter.

Michael Donovan: Yeah. Well, yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: automatically. You talked about quick responses in one of your posts. Well, there you go. Because a human can't calculate all that, write that and then and then send it fast.

01:07:20

Vinnie Micciche: But what a human can do is tell talk to a customer who says, "Hey, that seems really low. Can you do better compared? You know, I I've been shopping other dealers and they gave me higher prices. That's when you want a human involved and most of our convers most of our activity are on the phone where you get more context.

Michael Donovan: right? Yeah. for the variables. There's a lot of variables

Vinnie Micciche: That's why I want to get this in the hands of my agents as fast as possible, which is what I talked to um Sergey about today so they can have answers to questions much quicker about inventory, about you know uh how you know customer questions or whatever. Like Thomas is doing a real time VCON for better debt solutions that we'll end up getting as well because obviously it's a new enhancement. the the real-time VCON can be he said whisper in your ear. I said no. I want it displaying in the dialer so they can read it.

01:08:21

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: I don't want I I can't talk to a customer and hear something whispering at the same time. It's too complicated. But if this spits out right in front of me based on the conversation in real time, now we're in business.

Michael Donovan: It's a It's a great step in the right direction.

Vinnie Micciche: Yeah, that's a co-pilot, though. You get my point? It's not It's not that we're human first. We're human and AI together.

Michael Donovan: I think Yeah, I think that's what it said.

Vinnie Micciche: AI won't replace your team. AO exposure process.

Michael Donovan: human humanled AI assisted.

Vinnie Micciche: It's actually Alled humanist human maybe. I don't know. I mean again listen I'm playing around with these phrases. That's why I said did you share it with me so I can kind of think through it when I'm reading it on like Yes.

Michael Donovan: I did I shared it via link. Let me um formally share it here.

Vinnie Micciche: Share it again.

Michael Donovan: and and and you know just again like Reed I have to get with him.

01:09:31

Michael Donovan: Gus, he seemed to like this trying to expand the foundation and and Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: Okay, but let's say let's say you have a pretty good bot and your bot was able to produce what I just showed you.

Michael Donovan: Yep.

Vinnie Micciche: I'm going to read this and say Strawa doesn't know what they're talking about because my bot actually freaking answers better than humans personally. You know what I'm saying? And could could push back on that? I might be going, "Oh, you don't know. Your bot you don't your butt sucks or the bots you've been looking at are terrible. The ones I'm using are good." I don't know.

Michael Donovan: That's great. That's great. If we get that debate going,

Vinnie Micciche: Where do you need a person? Where do you need a person involved in the selling cycle in at the buying stage? Everyone will agree with that. A bot isn't going to be able to negotiate, use empathy, critical thinking, not say yes, not say no, say, "Let me see what I can do."

01:10:42

Vinnie Micciche: That's those are all the things humans do because it's an emotion. It's a reaction. It's it's a relationship building mechanism within any good salesperson.

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: And bot can't do that. Bot's going to lose business for buyers on the buyer side. And all you have to do is listen to a lot of phone calls that come in here.

Michael Donovan: Heat.

Vinnie Micciche: I can tell you within when it's an inbound call, 90% of them are buyers. On a lead, it can be one of the three, shopper, research, buyer. And my guess is the buyer makes up about 10 to 15% of the people we engaged with. That's where you want a human involved. And I'm not listen it's it's like this.

Michael Donovan: Yeah, it's intent. It's just or we got to pull in the intent, right? That's the difference between Vinnie Micciche: Um, when I think of marketing, I always talk about um, you know, organic conversion versus third party leads and and so forth. Really, what I'm saying is the organic conversion is lower funnel.

01:12:01

Vinnie Micciche: Really, what I'm saying is the phone call is lower funnel. I want more of those as a dealer. When I get those, I don't want to f those up. I don't want to f the shopper or the researcher either, but those people haven't made a decision yet.

Michael Donovan: Yeah.

Vinnie Micciche: They're still shopping around. I just put myself in the customer's shoes when I think through all this stuff. So, you know, if you turn all your business over to a bot, you're going to most likely jeopardize the most important customer that you're dealing with through the lead cycle, which is the buyer.

Michael Donovan: right?

Vinnie Micciche: And you could potentially lose sales if you don't have human involvement that at that critical stage, you know, and that's basically what Drive Centric is getting at, too. We're going to do all this messaging for you, but when they engage, you need to get a human involved. We can do the same thing for all of our dealers. They don't have to sign up with Drive Centric. We can build a bot that engages quickly, engages fast, and once they start communicating, we can get a human to jump in at the right time. That would be ideal, you know.

Michael Donovan: Right. Well, makes sense. Okay, I shared this. I got to jump to Joe. Um, we can just use this as uh some research, right? To get a little more dialed in, fully aligned and to diversify our content, give our give our people, right? Employee satisfaction. This definitely helps with uh it's proactive against churn and it keeps it keeps our people current with like thinking about this stuff so they don't get robotic in responses and replies and Right.

Vinnie Micciche: Yeah. Mhm.

Michael Donovan: So, uh and it's not a big lift. It's It really isn't. Yeah.
